What motivated me to write this book is an unyielding desire to make a difference in this world. I am passionate about helping people to achieve their life purposes and goals. I envision a world whose inhabitants are operating at their maximum potential; where every individual will dazzle the still morning skies like a butterfly; have the swiftness of an eagle; the grace of a peacock; the strength of an elephant and the courage of a lion.

For all these qualities to happen to our lives, we must make a decision to operate at our maximum potential in everything we do. Whether it is trying to lose weight, become a millionaire, become the best artist the world has ever seen, the key is to be the best version of yourself.

Research has demonstrated that the only way to excel in what we are doing is to be passionate about it. The starting point for your journey to success must therefore revolve around identifying your passions. It is about the desire to improve your skills and enrich your habits through continuous practice. It is about investing all your waking hours doing and perfecting what you love.

Once you have figured out what your life passions are, you need to move to the next phase. You determine the strategies which you can use to actualize those passions. And the starting point of actualizing your dreams is simply to pick valuable life changing lessons from those who have made it big in life.

Using their success formula, we will certainly know which buttons to press, which areas of our life to fix, and most importantly, what strategies to use so that we can also be persons of substance and impact.

Remember: the greatest tragedy in life is to die as a hopeless failure.

This book addresses every area of your life that needs fixing. The 20 life changing habits described in this book have been picked from the life of U.S president Barack Obama. As you are aware, the Obama was at one point just like us. At Columbia University, for example, he used to put up in a poor drug prone neighborhood. The room he rented had no furniture and he and his roommate used to put their dinner plates on their laps. This and many other challenges beg the question: How did he overcome all these challenges and rise steadily to become the world's most powerful man? The answer to this question has been comprehensively tackled inside this book.

Download this book today, learn about the 20 life-changing habits that you can pick from the life of Barack Obama, add it to your inner shelf of rich habits, sit back and watch the kind of transformations that would happen to your life.
