The New Faces of Organizations in the 21st Century (Volume 4)

The New Faces of Organizations in the 21st Century (Volume 4)

In the 21st century, organizations have been undergoing rapid and multi-dimensional changes. Adapting to these changes is pivotal to the long-term success of organizations, and new strategies are needed to meet the growing challenges they face in this globalized era. In this multi-volume reference book, we introduce the new concept of "the new faces of organizations." This concept encompasses evolving attributes that can originate from within an organization or its surroundings. We lay the groundwork for understanding how the new faces can be developed by organizations regardless of their type, size, structure or industry and enable them to simultaneously pursue multiple goals. This multi-volume reference book helps faculty, students, managers and decision-makers to recognize evolving faces of organizations and to further their knowledge on the new organizational theories and practices in the 21st century.
